This Guide to Action for Educators highlights key issues related to underage drinking found in the complete Call to Action To Prevent and Reduce Underage Drinking. It was developed to provide educators and other school personnel a guide to what they can do to take action against underage drinking and why. The Surgeon General believes that, when armed with the knowledge and tools they need to help tackle a significant public health problem, parents, educators, administrators, and policymakers are better able to take action to prevent and reduce the problem and the suffering it causes.
